By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon may form a special pool of Reservists and put the men on advance notice that they would be the first to be called up to fill out understrength Reserve units in future Cold War crises.

The object would be to prevent repetition of difficulties in the recent Berlin crisis call-up.

Some Reservists who were ordered to active duty complained they should have been exempted because of family responsibilities. Others contended men with less active service should have been mustered first.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara disclosed current Pentagon thinking on Reservists Friday as he appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee to outline the department's budget for the next fiscal year. It seeks authority to obligate $54 billion, including $48.3 billion in direct expenditures.

He also outlined a five-year plan to boost U.S. armed might to cope with Soviet military advances. But he wouldn't put a price tag on it because "we do not have a very high degree of confidence in our estimates beyond 1968."

The secretary testified behind closed doors but a censored version of his opening 122-page statement was made public.

McNamara said no final decisions have been made on the proposed special Reserve pool.

He said, "To avoid the administrative problems that occurred in the recent call-up" a special pool of men with Reserve obligations would be created within the larger Ready Reserve reinforcement pool.

Preferably, he said, the pool would consist of men who had only six months of full-time training before entering the Reserves.

"These persons would be carefully screened to eliminate all those not available for immediate recall for reasons of occupation, family status, etc. and would be the first to be called as individual fillers for the priority Reserve units to be added to the active Army," the Pentagon chief said.

Six Killed in Algiers Fighting

By ANDREW BOROWICZ

ALGIERS (AP)—Six persons were killed in Algiers and Oran today as terrorism continued unabated in the country's two largest cities.

Two Europeans and a Moslem were slain in Algiers and two Moslems and a Jew were killed in Oran.

In Bone a French postman was slain.

In Oran some 5,000 high school pupils paraded through the city with banners demanding protection for the schools. Other banners said "Algeria is French and the secret army is power."

The secret army is the right-wing European organization waging a terrorist campaign against Algerian independence.

Public transport continued strikebound for the second day in Algiers. The strike was called to protest against the black of security of drivers. One was recently wounded by a terrorist.

Kennedy Asks Restraint of Both Sides

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy again called today for both labor and business to exercise restraint in an effort to head off inflation.

He stressed the need for price stability at home and an increase in exports in a speech to several hundred leaders in business, labor, banking, communication, and other fields, attending a Treasury Department conference on savings bonds.

The President spoke briefly, then left immediately for the airport where he took off for New York and a luncheon meeting with Acting U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant.

As he has in the past, Kennedy stressed that new wage contracts negotiated this year should be tied to increases in productivity.

"We can maintain our price stability for another year if business and labor show restraint," he said.

"There also is a need for prudence in government and a drive to increase our exports."

Savings bonds play their part by making the job of the Treasury easier, he said.

"Savings bonds serve to ease inflationary pressures and provide savers with an investment in security. They make a direct contribution to our national security."

Kennedy said that if exports could be increased by as much as 5 per cent, while prices were held constant, it would cut the balance of payments deficit by a billion dollars.

Kennedy originally had been scheduled as an afternoon speaker at the conference, but was moved up to the first spot on the program when his trip to New York was announced.

He was followed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who quipped, "I hope you people don't mind the change in menu. You've already had the dessert, and now you've got to pay attention to the shrimp."

Other speakers at the morning session included Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric and James E. Webb, space administrator.

Special Justice Smallwood Dies

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP)—J. M. (Jack) Smallwood, 61, an attorney whom Gov. Orval Faubus had appointed as a special justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court, died of a heart attack at his home Thursday night.

Smallwood, a former state representative, had been appointed to the court to consider a damage suit involving the secretary of one regular justice.

He was a graduate of the University of Arkansas and received his law degree from the University of Missouri. He was a former president of the Arkansas State Bar Association.

Survivors include his widow and one daughter.

4 Children Die in a House Fire

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Four Negro children, including a set of twins, died in a fire which destroyed a farm home housing a family of 14 near here late Thursday night.

Another child was burned severely.

The victims were listed by officers as two-year-old Bonnie Broom and his sisters, Lillian, five, and the twins, Carolyn and Carrie, three.

They were among the 13 children of Mrs. Lucy Broom living in the house. Mrs. Broom has two other children living away from home.

Ernest Lee Broom, 10, was burned on his face, neck, arms and body.

The house was located about five miles south of Pine Bluff.

Cause of the fire was not determined definitely, but investigators said it might have started from a heating stove.

"They said some of the family had gone to bed but others apparently were still up when the fire broke out."

Mrs. Broom and the other children escaped.

She was taken to a hospital and given a sedative but was not admitted.

Condition of Ernest Lee Broom was reported today as serious but apparently not critical.

Raps Coalition Governments

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., charged today that U.S.-supported coalition governments are at the very best "merely way stations on the road to Communist domination."

He said a strategy for victory is one which says: "We will never reconcile ourselves to the Communists' possession of power of any kind in any part of the world."

Goldwater made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery before the Air War College at Maxwell Air Force Base. But weather conditions forced him to cancel his flight from Washington to deliver it.

In the prepared speech, made available by his Washington office, Goldwater called for creation of a "master design for winning over the Communists at each and every point of contest."

Strange Quiet By Kremlin Is Storm Mask

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Western diplomats pictured the strange quiet emanating from the Kremlin today as a mask for a major development in the wind.

Exactly where it will blow no Western diplomat was brash enough to predict. But one of the most respected Western ambassadors in Moscow said he believed it was much more likely to involve Red China than Berlin.

Noting that Soviet foreign and domestic policy seems pretty much on dead center, this diplomat said there never has been a period of quiet like this without it exploding into some major move.

The diplomat, who is in close contact with high members of the Soviet government, said it was obvious that a major disagreement was going on. What was not clear, he said, was whether it was a squabble among top members of the Soviet Communist party or more widespread among members of the Soviet bloc.

Western diplomats also suggested that Premier Khrushchev is engaged in an ideological battle with V. M. Molotov, the Stalinist former premier and foreign minister. They said Khrushchev may have suffered a setback.

The Western ambassadors were almost united in a belief that Molotov's return to Vienna has been delayed only because the old Bolshevik doesn't want to be shunted off again to such a minor job as Soviet representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

Molotov held that post when he and other members of the so-called anti-party group were denounced by Khrushchev at the 22nd Soviet party congress last October. Molotov returned to Moscow Nov. 12 to fight a move to expel him from the Communist party.

Western officials believed then he would not be heard from again in an official Soviet capacity, but the foreign ministry announced Jan. 8 that Molotov was returning to Vienna to take up his post again.

Molotov never showed up, and the Soviet government and the party have since refused public comment on his case.

Boasting the belief of an ideological struggle was the fresh denouncement of Molotov in Wednesday's Communist party newspaper Pravda, as a dogmatic opponent of Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence, which the newspaper called "the most important question of our time."

Other evidence of what Western diplomats described as the Kremlin's present state of indecisiveness was the fact that the new Soviet ambassador to Washington Anatoly F. Dobrynin, has not left for his post one month after appointment, and the fact that the Soviet Union is marking time on concluding a new cultural agreement with the United States.

South Africa to Maintain Its Policy

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—The South African government will not depart from its policy of racial separation no matter how great the pressures from the United Nations or other outside sources, President Charles C. Swart declared today in an address opening the new session of Parliament.

And if it comes to armed pressure either against South Africa or its neighboring mandated territory of South West Africa, Swart warned, "We must have defense forces which can safeguard us against all dangers which the future might contain."

Swart is the nonpolitical chief of state, and his address was written by the white supremacist government of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd. Verwoerd's National party has a greater majority in this Parliament than ever before.

Outlining the government's legislative program, Swart said most of it and the parliamentary debate would be affected by the present international situation "and especially the progressive deterioration of the United Nations" as an instrument of peace.

He accused the United Nations of Africa under prompting of the African-Asian and Communist blocs.

"The objective is clear, namely that the whole of Africa must be ruled by black peoples," he declared.

Dominican Pleased With New Regime

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Dominicans exulted wildly today over restoration of civilian government in a counter-coup that formally ousted President Joaquin Balaguer and imprisoned the strong man who had imposed military rule.

"Balaguer boo boo! Balaguer boo boo!" people chanted in the streets, to rhythmic whistling and hand-clapping.

Cars piled high with riders honked the beat and blocked traffic on the main street, El Conde, which only 24 hours before was grimly silent and nearly deserted except for armed patrols.

People hugged each other, stores reopened and a carnival air reigned in celebration of the quick fall of the junta imposed Wednesday by Maj. Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria, the armed forces commander.

The general's own officers executed the counter-coup Thursday night and jailed him.

Rafael Bonnelly, 57, a lawyer-professor who has been active in the National Civic Union, became the new president, as he had been scheduled to before Wednesday's military takeover.

Bonnelly was sworn in almost exactly 48 hours after he and three other members of an all-civilian state council were let out of the national palace as prisoners of Rodriguez Echavarria who set up a military-civilian junta in the council's place.

Two months ago the capital celebrated the republic's liberation from the Trujillo dynasty in a coup led by Rodriguez Echavarria. Now he is a prisoner.

There was no immediate announcement about what would be done with the imprisoned general, an Air Force veteran, or who would replace him as the armed forces commander. Army Col. Victor Elvy Vinas Roman, 36, sub-secretary of the armed forces, temporarily took over his office at the San Ysidro Air Base.

The government-operated Radio Caribe reported Air Force Gen. Andres Rodriguez Mendez, an exile in Puerto Rico, would succeed Rodriguez Echavarria. But Bonnelly told newsmen the assignment remains to be decided.

Revenue Act Suit Called Harrassment

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus today termed a law suit against the Revenue Stabilization Act as another harassment of his administration.

"I feel about this the same as the omnibus case," Faubus said. "But I don't know the people behind this or their motive."

Plaintiff in the Pulaski Chancery Court suit, which also attacks three 1961 appropriation measures, is James J. Hooker, a Little Rock shoe salesman.

"This looks like a pretty far-reaching case to me," Faubus said. He added that he was advised of the action last night, but had no chance to study the suit until he read details in today's newspapers.

Faubus said he thought passage of the Revenue Stabilization Act, which first was adopted long before Faubus took office, was "one of the best moves the state ever took."

The act, which is amended in each legislative session, establishes a formula for allocating state money to various funds. It makes no appropriation, but acts as a check on appropriations which are made.

Faubus seemed puzzled by the portion of the suit which challenged constitutionality of appropriations for the highway and education departments on grounds that the bills were not specific enough.

It was on such grounds the Supreme Court invalidated the 1961 Omnibus law, a catch-all appropriations measure which formed one pillar of Faubus' sweeping Continued on Page Two

Junior Chamber of Commerce a Young Organization of Young People, Has Birthday

By MARY ANITA LASETER

It has been said that the hope of mankind lies in the hands of youth and action. What better example of this can be found than that in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which is observing its birthday this next week?

Yesterday and today the U.S. Jaycees are holding a congress in Santa Monica, Calif., to select the 10 most outstanding young men in our nation.

What is this organization? Is it a younger edition of the Chamber of Commerce? No, the name is misleading in that respect. In his inspiring and challenging book, "Young Men Can Change the World," Borton Herndon sheds a great deal of light on this international organization of men between the ages of 21 and 35.

He explains that the purpose of this American-born organization is leadership training, to help members of today become leaders of tomorrow. "Just when you think you know what you're doing," a former National Jaycee President said, "you've got to get out."

Henry Giessens founded the Young Men's Progressive Civic Association in St. Louis, Mo. on Oct. 13, 1915. The original Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Campaign was begun by this group to get St. Louis ready for the Democratic National Convention in June 1916. The group did not retain its original name too long, however.

It was changed to Junior Citizens. In 1920, after the Business Men's League became the Chamber of Commerce, the J.C.'s adopted the name J.C.C.

The charter date for the Hope Jaycees was November 1956, and the first president was Grady Burton. The Jaycee by-laws prohibit a member from holding an office more than one year, regardless of how good a job he has done. The first local president was succeeded by A. D. "Sonny" Brannan Jr., Raymond Byers and W. E. "Gene" White Jr. The next president, Bob Comers, served only a short time before moving out of town, and Dale Dunn completed the tenure of office.

At present Denville Ross is President of the Hope Jaycees. Other officers are Bobby Joe Lee, first vice president; Dean Hamilton, second vice president; Don Fuller, secretary; and Raymond Clark, treasurer. Board members are Bob Lewis, Doyle Yocom, Jim Easterling and Jack Reynard. D. J. Goodner is a state director.

Every Jaycee project, whether success or failure, provides leadership training. "The real purpose of our organization is to develop the leadership capabilities of the members through planning and executing projects which make our communities better places in which to live," said Edward A. Merdes of Alaska, 1959 National Vice President.

The most recent local project was a Christmas party for needy children which approximately 80 children attended. Each year the 46 members of the Hope Jaycees conduct an Easter Egg Hunt at Fair Park, and from time to time Turkey Shoots are sponsored by them at the local airport. In past years they have sponsored the Teen-age Road-e-o, burning old Christmas trees, the Christmas Parade and bringing Santa to town during Christmas week.

Though they no longer conduct those projects, they are very interested in Operation Library, the Miss Hope Hospitality contests, and events at the Third District Livestock Show.

Operation Springtime is a typical Jaycee project in which good will is combined with good fun to produce good results. Their last such "Operation" was to paint Miss Eva Owens' home on South Harvey, Arkansas made each year include Boss of the Year, a Distinguished Service Award, the Outstanding Young Farmer, and the Outstanding Jaycee.

It is true that "young men can change the world," and it is that change in the direction of people like the young men in the Jaycee organization, it will be for the better, especially through the close co-operation of its auxiliary organization, known locally as the Jaycettes.

Criticism for Reserve Callup

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The national president of the Reserve Officers Association criticized the Kennedy administration Thursday night for calling up reservists over the Berlin crisis.

Near Adm. Jom E. Harlin, USNR, said the call-up violated the traditional policy that reservists be ordered to duty only for total mobilization.

U. S. Reds Subpoenaed by Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—The Worker, Communist paper, said today "several of its staff members" have been subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury in Washington.

They are wanted for questioning under the internal security law of 1950, generally known as the McCarran Act.

The Worker, calling the action "a blow at American liberties," said "targets" of the subpoenas included the publication itself and Erik Bert, Charles Hendley, James Lustig and Dorothy Robinson.

The publication's masthead lists Bert as managing editor, Lustig as business manager, and Dorothy Robinson as office manager. Hendley is unlisted.

The story in the publication said: "The issuance of the subpoenas followed by only a couple of days the ill-concealed call of Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., Dixiecrat racist and a leader in the ultraright coalition, for prosecution of the Worker."

The publication said newspapermen from 60 countries, attending a meeting of the International Organization of Journalists in Havana, had cabled a protest to President Kennedy against what they called "the harassment of The Worker by the Department of Justice."

A grand jury in Washington indicted the Communist Party Dec. 1 on a charge of violating the internal security law. The government had set three deadlines for registration as an agent of the Soviet Union—Nov. 20 for the party itself, Nov. 30 for officers and Dec. 20 for members. All deadlines passed without any registration.

Officer's Article Held Up

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department and the Marine Corps have refused to release a Marine colonel's article on the service's history.

A Defense Department spokesman said today the article seemed to have the effect of charging a conspiracy existed among several former officials to kill off the Marine Corps.

The spokesman said clearance was refused because the article appeared to impugn motives of former presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, retired Army Gen. Omar Bradley, former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and the late Adm. Forrest Sherman, once chief of naval operations.

The incident comes to light virtually on the eve of opening of a Senate inquiry into charges of muzzling of military officers by Pentagon officials. A Senate subcommittee probe is scheduled to begin next week.

The article was written by Col. Robert D. Heint Jr., now chief of U. S. naval mission in Haiti, for intended publication in the monthly "Proceedings" magazine of the United States Naval Institute. The institute is not an official agency of the Navy but its board is composed of ranking Navy and Marine officers.

The institute sent the article to the Pentagon on Sept. 15, the spokesman said.

Prospects Are Bright in New Guinea Dispute

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Prospects of negotiations aimed at settling the Dutch-Indonesian dispute over West New Guinea brightened today with news that Indonesia is sending an expert on the territorial issue to U.N. headquarters.

The Indonesian delegation disclosed that Sudjarwo Tjondronegoro, a top aide of Foreign Minister Subandrio, will arrive here Sunday. Sudjarwo, former chief of the delegation, represented his government in past U.N. debates on West New Guinea.

Delegates expressed belief Sudjarwo is being sent here in response to Acting Secretary-General U. Thant's appeal that Dutch and Indonesian representatives discuss with him the chances for a peaceful settlement.

The Netherlands government has accepted Thant's offer to act as mediator and proposed in turn that the U.N. chief send observers to West New Guinea where opposing naval forces already have clashed.

Sukardjo Wirjopranoto, Indonesian's present chief U.N. delegate who told a reporter Subandrio's aide was coming, said there was "something in the air." He did not elaborate.

Sources in Jakarta said President Sukarno has replied to Thant's proposal about negotiating a settlement, but did not disclose the contents of his message.

Sukardjo saw Thant after the secretary-general had lunch with President Kennedy—a meeting that purportedly dealt in part with the New Guinea dispute.

Kennedy has endorsed Thant's efforts to get Dutch-Indonesian talks on the dispute and has urged both sides to cooperate with the U.N. chief.

Indonesia has insisted that any negotiations should be limited to the problem of how to transfer the disputed territory from Dutch to Indonesian administration.

The Netherlands government wants the talks to take place without any prior conditions.

Negro School Is Closed in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The nation's largest state university for Negroes has been closed in the aftermath of mass student demonstrations against racial segregation.

Southern University shut down suddenly Thursday and an integration leader—expelled from Southern earlier in the day—said the closure stemmed from the "influence of other powers" on the school's president, Dr. Felton C. Clark, a Negro.

The outside influence claim came from Ronnie Moore, chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality unit at Baton Rouge. He did not elaborate.

CORE later reported that Moore and another Negro student leader were arrested Thursday night on charges of disturbing the peace. The sheriff's office declined to comment.

The university president was not available for comment on Moore's claim of outside influence but said earlier that "there can be no communication in any kind of mob situation."

And he said that a disruption of normal routine at the university included vandalism and property destruction, "the extent of which has not yet been determined."

Clark said the school will remain closed until further notice. The registrar, J. J. Hedgemon, said when classes resume all students will have to apply for readmission.

Southern has an enrollment of 4,000 and both the faculty and student body are entirely Negro.

state construction program. "It would be pretty difficult to appropriate money for specific purposes in the case of the Highway Department," Faubus said. "You'd have to appropriate money, for example, for one bridge, and if it needed repairs later, you'd have to come back and make another appropriation."

Faubus said he hoped everyone remembered that the basic stabilization law was passed long before he became governor and that the basic law has never been changed.

Faubus is not now a defendant in the suit, which names various state officials, but he said he would confer with his attorneys so he will be prepared if he later is made a party.

The third appropriations bill challenged in the suit is a $100,000 a year allocation to the governor's emergency fund. This is designed to enable the governor to meet unexpected expenses, and the bill contains no designation as to where the money will go.

State Rep. Ray Smith of Garland County remarked today that if the Stabilization Act is invalidated the legislature would have to re-enact every appropriations bill.

Sen. Roy Milum of Harrison, who questioned validity of the Omnibus Law on the floor of the Senate long before it was attacked in court, said he felt plaintiffs in the new suit might have a point on the Revenue Stabilization Act, but he felt they were off base on the highway and appropriations measures.

"Everything in these bills is for one purpose—either education or operation of the highways," Milum said.

DOROTHY DIX
Two Brothers in Love
With One Girl

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Four-and-a-half years ago I met two brothers who looked enough alike to be twins. Here the resemblance ended. The elder was gay, charming and easy-going, the younger, just my age, silent, shy and supersensitive.

I fell in love with the happy brother, and he with me. We became engaged before he joined the Service. His parents were delighted, practically considered me a member of the family. My parents felt the same way about him. He has written every single day since he left, telling of his love for me.

Last summer, because I was so lonely and because the younger brother reminded me of him I dated the boy. I even made believe he was my fiancé, though not having the least feeling for him other than that of a sister. My play must have touched a responsive chord for he poured out his hopes and fears and dreams to me.

One night when driving home from a lecture on World Trends (he is very intellectual), he told me he loved me. Now I am carrying his baby. This is driving me out of my mind for it is his brother not me whom I love. It was only because I was lonely for my fiancé (he had been gone a year), that I let my emotions take over.

I can't tell his parents or mine—they wouldn't understand. Should I write him the awful truth and pray for his understanding? Or tell only his brother? So far you are the only one who knows. —Desperate choices:

Dear Desperate: You have four

1. Go to another state for the birth of your baby. Place it for adoption and tell no one.

2. Seek the younger brother's help. Tell him the bitter truth—that though carrying his child, it is his brother you love—and ask his advice.

3. Tell your fiancé the hard, cold facts. Ask him if, under the circumstances, he could still find it in his heart to marry you, since it is he you really love.

4. Admit what you have done. Marry neither brother. Have your child and rear it yourself.

You know the brothers, I don't. The first course is the easiest. Instead of four people, you will be hurting only yourself and the baby.

In my opinion, the second choice is unavoidable because you do not love this boy, yet he most surely would talk you into marrying him for the sake of the child.

The third way, while difficult, would not be as hard as the fourth.

The fourth is the more honest, but have you the moral courage to stand unconventionally alone in a conventional world? If people turn against you, as they most surely will, can you support yourself and your baby? You will gain in character only if you take charge. In fact, this will be a test of character for everybody concerned. I cannot tell you what to do, he decision is yours alone. Let me know the outcome.

Dear Helen: I am afraid nobody will ask me to my junior prom next month. At 16, I am still without a boy friend. My trouble is shyness. Help! —B. P.

Dear B. P.: It is part of a young girl's upbringing to learn to be at ease socially. That is a job for your parents. Your mother should look up the sons of friends and make it her business to see that you and they get acquainted. The easiest way to break the ice is to give a Saturday night record hop in the basement or garage, and ask some of the parents to help with the music and refreshments.

Stabilization Act Attacked in Courts

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A lawsuit in Chancery Court Thursday attacks the constitutionality of the state Revenue Stabilization Act and indirectly the whole financial structure of the state of Arkansas.

In addition to the Stabilization Act, the suit attacks its companion The Accounting Procedure Act and the 1961 appropriations laws which provide funds for the state Highway Department, Education Department, and the governor's emergency fund.

The plaintiff listed in the suit was James J. Hooker of Little Rock. His attorney, Dave D. Panich filed the action. Panich asked for temporary and permanent injunctions to restrain state officials from spending funds authorized by the laws.

If the laws are found unconstitutional, the state's financial structure could be dealt a serious blow. The Revenue Stabilization Act is the means by which general funds are distributed to state agencies.

The Accounting Procedure Act of 1955 implements the Stabilization Act by establishing certain budget and pre-audit practices regarding receipts and expenditures and other general fiscal transactions.

It is the second major suit filed against state fiscal practices in less than a year. State Rep. J.H. Cottrell of Little Rock filed suit against Gov. Orval E. Faubus' omnibus appropriations act, and the law was declared unconstitutional.

Cottrell said he has had serious doubts about the constitutionality of the Revenue Stabilization Act since it was passed in 1953. But he denied any knowledge of the suit against the law.

Attorneys for the governor during the omnibus suit argued that Cottrell was trying to establish a constitutional provision against making more than one appropriation in one law. That was the point that was argued in the Omnibus Act case.

A special legislative session was needed to reappropriate money when the Omnibus Act was ruled invalid. Another special session might be necessary to implement state financing if the Stabilization Act is ruled unconstitutional.

The Stabilization Act has never been attacked in the courts. I came before the Supreme Court in another case 10 years ago, and in its opinion the Supreme Court said pointedly that it was not ruling on the validity of the Stabilization Act.

The lawsuit charges that four of the five laws—all but the emergency fund law—violate a constitutional prohibition against delegating legislative powers to the executive branch of the government.

The highway bill appropriated $166.2 million for each of the fiscal years 1961-62 and 1962-63. The education bill appropriated $104,788,000 for the Board of Education plus other funds for special education purposes operated from this department.

The governor's emergency fund contains $100,000 for each of the two fiscal years.

Hooker brought the suit as a taxpayer suit and class action for all other taxpayers in the state.

Panich said he would ask Chancery Court Judge Guy Williams for an early hearing on the temporary restraining order.

Named as defendants were the members of the Highway Commis-

French Plantation Director Freed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Henri Vittoz, a French rubber plantation director kidnapped by the Communist Viet Cong Dec. 20, has been released.

The French Embassy today reported Vittoz's return to his plantation 30 miles east of Saigon. The embassy said it did not know whether a ransom had been paid.

Vittoz was the fourth kidnap victim to be returned by the Viet Cong this week. The others were a Japanese engineer and his Vietnamese driver, and another French planter.

Still missing with no new word on his fate is a U.S. Army enlisted man, George F. Fryett Jr. of Los Angeles who disappeared from Saigon on Christmas Day.

The government reported heavy fighting in Quang Nam Province, about 330 miles northeast of Saigon, and said 42 Viet Cong rebels were killed between Jan. 8-11 in an extended government operation.

Natural Causes

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jessie Kahan's death in her West Los Angeles apartment resulted from natural causes, the coroner has ruled. Police theorized earlier she was slain.

Her husband, Samuel, 56, found Mrs. Kahn, 53, dead on the floor of their home Wednesday night.

Moon Effort Delayed at Least Month

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

—A United States attempt to rock- et a payload to the moon, sched- uled for next Monday, was post- poned today for at least a month because of technical troubles with the Atlas booster rocket.

A brief statement said: "The Ranger 3 lunar launching scheduled for January has been postponed due to technical diffi- culties in the launch vehicle boost- er. No new launch date has been set."

The Ranger 3 firing was one of three major U.S. space efforts scheduled for January. The others are the attempt to send astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. into orbit about the earth and to orbit five satellites with a single rocket.

Space scientists had a 5-day period starting Monday in which to launch Ranger 3. In this time, the moon will be in a favorable position, some 235,000 miles away.

The trouble in the Atlas boost- er, not disclosed, is such that it could not be corrected in time to achieve launching in this period. The next optimum period begins about Feb. 20.

Construction Program Is Delayed

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The man who is supervising Arkansas' $23 million state construction program thinks it will be about three months before any major work is ready to start.

Charles S. Warman of Russellville, hired last Nov. 1 to oversee and co-ordinate the building program set up at special legislative sessions in August and September, said today only one major contract has been let so far—for a kitchen at the State Hospital's Little Rock unit.

"We're just getting started, but a lot of people are moving forward," Warman said. "I expect activity to pick up by spring."

Two institutions—the Deaf School and the Negro School for Blind and Deaf—have construction plans just about ready for approval, Warman said.

Demolition of a building—to make way for a new one—already has started at the Deaf School.

Until now, Warman has concerned himself principally with inspecting and approving minor repair projects at armories around the state.

"We're also building a superintendent's house at Crowley Ridge State Park," Warman said. "I had to check that out."

The legislature created Warman's job so there would be co-

Astronaut's Home Town Very Proud

By ADRIENNE BLOCK

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—Lots of home towns have boys who make good. But New Concord, Ohio, will match its hometown boy against any in the universe. He is Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., Mercury astronaut who is scheduled to orbit the earth next week.

On the outside New Concord doesn't look any different from what it did before "Johnny" was selected as one of the seven astronauts two years ago.

The only outward sign is the highway poster on U.S. 40 at each end of the village, 70 miles east of Columbus and 61 miles west of Wheeling, W. Va. The signs read: "New Concord, O., home town of John H. Glenn Jr., Mercury Astronaut."

Glenn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Glenn Sr., have lived here 38 years, and the Marine officer spent his grade, high school and college years here. The father is a retired plumbing contractor.

The only publicly displayed picture of the astronaut is a small one on the calendar published by the East Muskingum Music Sponsors, a group of parents whose children study music in the area schools. The calendar is an advertisement for the local booster club, inn, bank and pharmacy.

The excitement and enthusiasm in this New Concord, it's in the comfortable way the people say "sub-orbital," "orbital," "re-entry."

"We've made no attempt to capitalize on John Glenn," explains Everett G. Thompson, principal of New Concord High School.

"There used to be some models of the Atlas missile on the highway signs," Mayor James K. Taylor said, "but somebody stole them last week."

"I notice that a lot more of our boys are trying to get into the Marines than before, but those are the only changes I've seen," he added.

"The only thing that's really changed our daily routine is the reporters who keep coming to the house," explained Glenn's mother, "but we've been at it two years now and I guess we're used to it. Just imagine, people coming into my living room to take pictures to be sent all over the world. It's amazing for quiet folks like us." Mrs. Glenn remarked.

With it all, the mother and father ordination of the construction program, perhaps the most ambitious the state ever has undertaken as a package.

Plans for proposed projects must be approved by him and he makes periodic inspections of actual construction. While his job was designed for the projects conceived at the special session, he has authority over all state building.

Warman works out of the Purchasing Office and Purchasing Agent Mack Sturgis is his immediate superior.

"It's going to get hectic when the main phase of the program starts," he said. "I'm already traveling an average of 700 miles a week." On his trips he consults with architects, contractors and officials of institutions.

Warman said he knew several colleges—including Arkansas State Teachers' and the Arkansas Tech—which have construction plans on the drawing board. "I'm sure there are others," he said. "They just aren't far enough along to advise me of the work."

The University of Arkansas and the seven colleges got $7.5 million as a group. The lion's share of building money went to the State Hospital, which got more than $6 million.

Almost every state institution was marked in for some share of the funds.

The $23 million program—to be financed with surplus funds, anticipated surpluses and reserve funds—was designed to replace the ambitious $74.5 million program drawn up by Faubus and approved at the 1961 regular legislative session.

The Faubus program was killed by the Arkansas Supreme Court, which declared a $14.5 million omnibus building fund bill unconstitutional, and voters, who rejected a $60 million construction bond proposal last summer.

At the high school, the students, many of them sons and daughters of John Glenn's friends, keep plying his former teachers with questions. "They're proud that someone from their high school is making history," said H. A. Steele, teacher and former principal at New Concord High.

The Village Council has been thinking of John Glenn too. They want to do something to honor him.

There's been talk of naming the new high school John H. Glenn Jr. High School. Some suggest renaming the street on which the Glenns live. Others think the name of the village park should be changed to Glenn. But they're decided to wait until John comes home after the orbital flight before they make a decision.

The villagers' plans for the day of the orbital flight are not elaborate.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn will be at home watching their television set with intimate friends. They've asked for privacy on flight day.

Prescott Beats Cats 54-53; Kittens Win

By VINCE FOSTER

The Prescott Curley Wolves edged the Hope Bobcats 54-43 last night at Prescott, giving the Cats their fourth loss against nine wins. The Cats trailed throughout the game, but in the final minutes they narrowed it down from a 10 point Prescott lead with a zone press, yet were still one point short at the buzzer. In the junior game, the Kittens remained undefeated, whipping the Curley Cats 47-30.

Both teams enjoyed a hot first quarter, but Prescott was out front 14-13 going into the second. They outscored the locals 13-8 in that period and led 27-21 at the half. Trailing 41-33 going into the final period, the Bobcats went to work with 40 seconds left on the clock and Prescott holding a three point lead, David Porterfield hit a long jump shot, putting Hope 2 points from victory. At the four second mark, there was a jump ball with Porterfield getting the tip and the final Hope shot just missed, leaving the Cats behind 54-53.

Halfback and Murphy led the locals with 13 points each, and Powell had 10. Porterfield 7, Roberts 6 and Russell 4 to complete the scoring. Robey led the victors with 19.

The Kittens had little trouble and led 12-6 in the first quarter. They stretched this lead to 24-13 at the half, and behind Jordan with 7 in the third period, Hope was out front 35-23 going into the final period, winning their seventh straight 47 to 30.

Jordan was high for Hope with 15, followed by Burnett with 13, McNatt with 11, Guerin with 4, and Billings and Ingram with 2 each. Hooks was high for the losers with 16.

Tonight the Cats and the Kittens tangled with the Panthers and Cubs from Magnolia in two district games. The Bobcats previously beat them in the Hope Holiday Tournament, and this game promises to be a good one. Very small crowds have been to these district games, so please attend and boost the Bobcats.

"I noticed that a lot more of our boys are trying to get into the Marines than before, but those are the only changes I've seen," he added.

The Road to the Snail

Chapter XXIV

The American construction workers began infiltrating the village. They were convincingly bearded, and gaily plumed in sports shirts, sandals, slim slacks and jeans; Littlejohn had done a fine job of camouflaging them.

It was hard to pick them out against the background of the village; it took an alert bird-watcher's eye to distinguish them from the genuine beatniks.

I spotted my first one on the beach.

Millie Gunn was sitting with a muscular, bearded young man, who had a weathered complexion and the eyes of a gunfighter.

I dried myself off, put on my clothes, and strolled over to her table. She wore a Bikini which was almost indistinguishable from the color and texture of her skin, and a great wing of red hair fell gracefully over one side of her clear, lovely face.

"Hello, John," she said. "I'd like you to meet Earl Slater. He tells me everyone calls him Tex."

"Howdy, Tex," I said.

"Howdy!" He put out a hand with calluses on it that were as thick and hard as walnuts.

"Tex is a writer," Millie said. "He's here to pick up material. Just arrived last night."

"Well, that's interesting. What do you write about, Tex?"

"Anything and everything. I ain't choosy."

"Outdoor stuff, I'll bet," I grinned at him. "The romance of building, the roar of machinery, the rattle of air-hammers. Stuff like that, eh?"

He gave me a solemn look. "Stuff like that, sure."

It was like bird-watching. I put Tex down as a hard-nosed crane operator. Figuratively, I banded him and let him go.

"See you around," I said.

As I turned into the cathedral square I spotted another queer-looking bird. He was sitting in front of Santa Eulalia's statue with Simple Simon. Simon waved happily at me.

"Come here, John; I want you to meet a new friend of mine. Ted Walkowicz. He's been kind enough to help me with the dove-count."

I shook hands with Walkowicz. He was built like a heavy-weight wrestler, with huge sloping shoulders, and forearms so hairy that the tattooed ladies there looked like nymphs hiding in jungle underbrush. He had mild blue eyes, a head shaped like an artillery projectile.

"Just arrived in town?" I asked him.

"Yeah," he blanked at me. "Mr. Walkowicz is a composer." Simon said. "He's going to write some music while he's here."

"Yeah," Walkowicz said, staring at me defiantly. "Songs."

Great, hairy-chested cat-skinner. I thought. "Well, you've come to a nice quiet place to work."

All the head of the narrow street which bisected the village, I ran into Dennis. He was bursting with excitement.

"They're here," he said, gripping my arm. "I've already spotted a couple. They're carrying it off superbly."

"I've seen a pair, too," I said. "That makes us even."

"You must come over to the Central. There's a chap there named Gino. I've talked with him. He's absolutely marvelous. Come along."

"Stop hopping around. You're supposed to be a bitter, helpless man without a friend in the world."

Dennis and I walked across the plaza to the Bar Central, maneuvering our way through the traffic and crowds. Everything was busy at this hour, with maids doing their last bit of shopping before the siesta break, the golfers and sunbathers and swimmers congregating at the bars for pre-lunch drinks.

We found a table at the rear of the crowded terrace and ordered anchovies and salted shrimps to go with a bottle of Diamante.

"There he is!" Dennis said, nodding toward the front of the terrace where a thickly-built young man with a cigar in his mouth was working away at an easel. "That's Gino. Isn't he bringing it off well?"

Gino certainly was; with his beret and beard and sandals, and an expression of ferocious determination on his face, he was as appropriate to the scene as a bowl of pretzels on a bar. A Frenchman behind him was scratching at pictures on a ketchup ad and a young man in shorts and stocking cap was writing furiously in long-hand at the adjoining table.

Gino fitted the scene perfectly. I couldn't see what he was drawing, but he hacked away like a pro, making short precise strokes with his pencil, never gripped by doubt, never pausing for inspiration.

Adam Barn came by a bit later and sat at our table. He ordered a glass of charged water and looked with mild reproach at our food. "You know, a thousand calories a day is enough for the average man," he said.

—so the vine said to the branches. Separated from the vine the branch became dead wood. We boast of our strength and the part we play but oh, how dependent on God we really are.
The physical body must have goods we cannot get except they come from God... air, food, water, companionship and even wealth.
It is all part of a living universe. By itself all of this would be dead wood.
The Christian without Christ becomes fruitless... dead.
The human is nothing apart from the divine. God not only created life,
He also sustains it. Our health, strength, success are all God's gift.
Better stop Mister, long enough to give Him credit.
Without Him we can do nothing.
